Questioning, curious, numerically oriented readers of the 8th Edition of Cartridges of the World, the most encyclopedic reference of its kind, will note that there are quite a few "JDJ" entries throughout the chapter on proprietary cartridges: the 226 JDJ, 6mm JDJ, 257 JDJ, 6.5mm JDJ x 30, 6.5mm JDJ #2, 270 JDJ, 7mm JDJ, 7mm-30 JDJ, 7mm JDJ #2, 309 JDJ, 8mm JDJ, 338 JDJ, 358 JDJ, 9.3mm JDJ, 375 JDJ, 411 JDJ, 416 JDJ, and 475 JDJ. JDJ stands for J. D. Jones, a prolific wildcatter, enthusiast, and promoter of these designs he's created for his company, SSK Industries. When you add the "Whisper" series in the same chapter (another 8 proprietary cartridges), J. D. Jones begins to look like the Bill Gates of the proprietary cartridge world.

Sometimes known for the "hand cannons" among SSK creations, there is a consistent theme in much of Jones' work. He's been involved with the problem of increasing the power and range of the new breed of strong-actioned single shot pistols, primarily those in the extensive lines from Thompson/Center.

The 338 JDJ #2 is definitely not a "Whisper" cartridge. Based on the 444 Marlin case necked down to 338 caliber, it can effectively shoot the wide range of 338 bullets now available for reloading. Be forewarned. This is not a cartridge for the timid nor faint of heart.
